

Readiness for Simulation Survey

In an effort to help you assess your level of readiness, and to assist you with focused instruction in simulation, consider each statement below as it applies to your setting:	YES	NO	Somewhat	Does Not Apply
I am aware of CEAL's simulation resources (i.e., physical spaces, technology, and equipment used in simulation).
I know the CEAL simulation staff and the roles they play in supporting me as an educator in simulation.
I know how to uphold participant integrity in my role as facilitator.
I come prepared for simulation events by reviewing key concepts and content related to the event.
I understand the need to address ethical considerations in developing and enacting simulations.
I understand the importance of using a structured approach to pre-briefing and debriefing.
I feel confident in my ability to accept feedback on my debriefing competency for the purpose of continuous improvement.
I acknowledge that debriefing is not giving direct feedback to participants focused simply on their mistakes.
I understand the importance of gathering feedback from learners on their simulation experience.
I am clear on my role(s) and the roles of others for simulation setup and clean-up.
